

Additional Resources from March 10, 2021 Newsletter

Additional Resources

- Can learning science help children learn to read?
 - Learn more about this recent randomized control trial that examined the impact of incorporating science and social studies contents into first grade literacy instructions. The findings suggest that science and social studies contents help students gain subject matter knowledge, improve reading and set them up for future academic success.