

The NYS Council for Community Behavioral Healthcare is New York's premiere statewide membership association representing the interests of over 100 community-based organizations that provide recovery-focused mental health and/or substance abuse/chemical dependence and addiction treatment programs and services for New Yorkers in need. The NYS Council leads advocacy efforts designed to preserve and enhance access to and continuity of care for all New Yorkers. It provides timely and accurate information and analysis on a broad range of issues impacting Council members to include federal, state policy and practice issues of import to our members. The NYS Council also offers its members a wide-range of training and technical assistance opportunities based on the unique needs of mental health and substance use disorder/addiction organizations. We are pleased to partner with CBC in providing wellness/self-care training to organizations across the state.
