CITY OF MILLEDGEVILLE, GEORGIA

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The City of Milledgeville water system experienced increased tank levels overnight, due to the increased flow at the water treatment plant. There are still plans to install a portable pump and it is hopeful that will be online by no later than Friday.

Even though the plant is now producing more flow, it will still take some additional time for the tanks to fill to a capacity that will get them to their pre-crisis levels. Please continue to follow the conversation activities request earlier.

An official Boil Water Advisory will be issued later this morning.

Drinking water will still be available at the County Government Center beginning at 9:00 AM this morning, April 27, 2023. Water for non-potable (non-drinking) use will still be available at the fire station locations communicated earlier.

Updates will be shared through the same means as this notice, including the city's website, Facebook page, and the local media.
